

NATURAL SELECTION CONSERVATION TRUST

An independent, non-profit organization registered in Botswana, supporting wildlife conservation and community upliftment in Botswana, Namibia and South Africa.

Natural Selection Safaris Pty. Ltd. are dedicated to playing a significant role in the protection of wilderness areas and wildlife in Africa. This aim is achieved not only through the way we operate, but also by donating 1.5% of every guest's stay in our lodges to wildlife conservation and community projects.

The Natural Selection Conservation Trust (NSCT) was established as an independent non-profit organization to administer the donated funds so that supported projects are making a real difference on the ground. There are five trustees who bring various expertise to the board.

Board of Trustees and their areas of expertise:

Dr. Jennifer Lalley (NS conservation director, conservation science, conservation tourism)
Dr. Julia Mambo (landscape scale assessments, climate change, poverty alleviation)
Dr. Susie Ellis (global conservation science, rhino conservation, non-profit management)
Ms. Lesley Boggs McNutt (conservation anthropology, project monitoring and assessment)
Dr. Tico McNutt (foremost conservation scientist in Botswana, carnivore conservation)

NATURAL SELECTION FOUNDATION
